WOULD BE HARMFUL

Press dispatches indicate that the majority of Americans citizens favor stronger army and navy. Many prominent men are coming forward with ideas as to the manner by which the money can be raised. A few seem to favor a bond issue but the majority favor raising the money by internal taxation, which is no doubt the best plan.

However it is to be hoped that the government will not require a revenue stamp to be placed on bank checks which undoubtedly will have a tendency to destroy a system of savings that has been encouraged by the government and the banks.

The small depositor could not afford to pay everytime he wrote a check and rather than do so he will carry his account in his pockets and pay his account with cash.

WELCOME THE NURSERY MAID

Not so many years ago such a thing as having a trained nurse in case of illness was rare, today the trained nurse is a necessity, especially in cases of serious illness and many lives owe their existence to careful nursing.

The mortality among babies is now receiving the close attention of the entire country and with this interest enters the nursery maid who has been instructed in the care of children from the infant of a few days to the child of six. The nursery maid receives nine months of training and after an examination before a board of physicians, at the close of their course, receive a diploma. The graduate nursery maid receives $25 a month her first year of service and $30 the second.

The nursery maid should receive a hearty welcome in this world, because her services are certainly needed. We venture the assertion that one-half the infants of this day do not receive one-fourth the attention they should receive. The mothers are too busy in outside affairs to look after them. Another good thing with the entrance of the nursery maid will be the exit of that deadly partner, one of the greatest germ carriers of the age. Welcome the nursery maid.

EXERCISING THEIR OWN JUDGMENT.

Senator E. D. Smith is not the only bold politician. Governor Manning and Commissioner McLaughlin must be added to the list.

Senator Smith predicted some time ago that cotton would sell at 15c a pound before January. It has not yet done so, but there are still a number of days to run. Governor Manning entered the arena a few days ago in advising farmers to hold their cotton and in proclaiming that the decline was due to the machinations of the enemy. But Commissioner McLaughlin is boldest of all, for he comes out in a positive statement as to the size of the crop, admitting that he knows nothing of conditions other than in North and South Carolina and Georgia.

In the meantime our farmer-friends are pursuing the even tenor of their way, selling a few bales when they need a little money, but displaying great prudence more than ordinary marketing ability. It is well for each of them to hearken unto all that is said by Senator, Governor or Commissioner, or by any one else, including our esteemed mayor. Having heard all, let them continue to do as they have done so well of late, namely, exercise their own judgment. Greenville Piedmont.

HOME DEMONSTRATION WORK SUCCESSFUL

Each Year Adds Interest—County
Should Support This Work.

I am just ending my second year in Home Demonstration, and I feel very much gratified over the year's work, although I know there is still more to be done than ever before next year. I had 62 girls in the Canning clubs and 104 in the Bread Clubs and most of these did splendid work. 59 out of 62 in the Canning Club made their year's report, and the following is what was done in the Canning line by those faithful 62. No. of pounds of tomatoes made 37,895.

Value of fresh vegetables sold from club gardens $1507.20.

No. of Cans of tomatoes (canned, 5256 1-3 cans.

No. of cans and jars of other products from club gardens, 2573.

No. of jars put up other than from club gardens, 4750.

Average cost of production per 1-3 acre $4.90.

Average cost of canning per 1-3 acre $8.50.

Average profit of canning per 1-3 acre $30.25.

This year, I mailed out 750 G. O. County Extension Bulletin and Letter, wrote 455 letters, 250 cards; held 2 County Meetings, 122 Community Meetings, total attendance $69. I gave 12 Canning, 4 bread making, 12 Piece Dress Cooking, and 4 Home Nursing Demonstrations among the Rural Women that were anxious to learn all they could about the Betterment of Home Life, as a result of these meetings, 42 fireless cookers, 20 fly traps were made and other home conveniences were bought or made.

The bread club work is just getting started. It was started only in last December and continuing until school closed, with only a lesson every two weeks. We took up the study of breads last winter but did not finish that study so we will begin with that this Fall.

I could never have accomplished the little I have had it not been for the loyal support of our County Superintendent of Education, teachers, mothers and others, who were interested not only in the training of the girls of our county, but also in the county itself, these were willing to lend a hand and help put Chester County in the forefront of the ranks and not let her remain in the rear where she has been "No" these years.

Because of the fact that so many of her, called, sons and daughters always knock a progressive movement unless they think they will make a mistake more than the next fellow, out of it. Several of the merchants have been kind about handling the supplies necessary and giving prizes.

Joe Yarbrough, Damp.

WHAT DID YOU DO?

Did you give him a lift? He's a brother of man.

And bearing about all the burden he can.

Did you give him a smile? He was a downcast and blue.

And the smile would have helped him to battle it through.

Did you give him your hand? He was slipping down hill.

And the world, so he fancied, was using him ill.

Did you give him a word? Did you show him the road.

Or did you just let him go on with his head?

Do you know what it means to be losing the fight.

When a lift just in time might set everything right?

Do you know it means—just the clasp of a hand.

When a man's borne about all a man ought to stand?

Did you ask what it was—why the quivering lip?

Why the hair suppressed sob, and the scalding tears drip?

Were you brother of his when the time came of need?

Did you offer to help him or didn't you need?

A PINE WHOOPING COUGH REMEDY.

Mothers, Dr. Bull's Pine Tar-Honey is just the remedy for your children's cold ailments. The fact is that pine is a quiet enemy of cold conditions, its qualities loosen the mucus in the throat, soothe the lungs and open up the air passages. The combination of honey, soothing and pleasant, with the loosening pine quality makes this an ideal cough remedy for children. Each passing year brings for it new friends. A family of growing children cannot afford to be without it. 25c a bottle.

FLAMES CLAIM COTTON

Fifteen Thousand Bales Damaged at Pine Bluff.

Pine Bluff, Ark. Nov. 28—Approximately 15,000 bales of cotton stored in the warehouse of the Pine Bluff Compress company were either destroyed or badly damaged by fire here today. The cotton, mostly of the long staple variety, was valued at $1,250,000. The origin of the fire has not been determined tonight.

Fire walls prevented the flames from communicating to the main building of the compress, in which 10,000 additional bales were stored. It was stated that the loss was fully covered by insurance. An investigation as to the origin of the fire was not concluded tonight but it was considered probable that sparks from a passing locomotive ignited the cotton.

Queen or Dairy Maid Ambition the Same

In the expectant mother's mind there is no limit to what the future has in store, and yet during the period of expectancy, much depends upon the physical comfort of the mother. One of the best aids is a remedy known as "Mother's Friend." Applied over the navel, it penetrates to the net work of nerves, relieves the pains incident to stretching of cords and ligaments, makes them pliant, induces daily comfort, peaceful nights, a calm mind and pleasant anticipation. You use it with your own hands, apply it as needed, and at once feel a sense of relief. Mothers who have learned all this from experience tell of the blessed relief from morning sickness, the absence of strain and the undoubted beautiful influence imparted to the coming baby.

Get a bottle of this splendid help today. Phone your nearest druggist or send for it. Then write Buckle's Remedial Co., 404 Lee Bldg., Atlanta, Ga., for a valuable book of instruction for expectant mothers. "Mother's Friend" is recommended everywhere by women who have used it. And you can read some very interesting letters if you write for this book.

Thankful For Relief

Remedy Brought Her

Says Fruitola and Traxo Possesses All the Merit That is Claimed for It.

After completing the necessary treatment, Mrs. S. S. Cole, Lampasas, Texas, was so well pleased with the results that she wrote the Pinus laboratories as follows: "Fruitola and Traxo are all you claim. It removed a quantity of gallstones and I feel sure it saved my life. I am well now and thankful to you for the great good your medicine has done me."

Fruitola is a powerful purgative for the intestinal organs and one dose is usually sufficient to clearly demonstrate its efficacy. It softens the congested masses, disintegrates the hardened particles that occasion so much suffering and expels the accumulated waste to the great relief of the patient. Following a dose of Fruitola, Traxo should be taken three or four times a day in order to rebuild and restore the system that has become weakened and run down from constant suffering. It is a splendid tonic, acting on the liver and stomach most beneficially.

Fruitola and Traxo are prepared in the Pinus laboratories at Monticello, Ill., and arrangements have been made to supply them through representative druggists. In Chester they can be obtained at Shelders Drug Co.

MAY TAX GASOLINE ONE CENT A GALLON

Would Fall on Large Fortunes—President May Confine Message to Topic of Defense.

Washington, Nov. 24—The means to be employed to obtain the additional revenue needed for national expense continues to be an absorbing topic. There were further indications today that the Administration was inclined to look with favor on the suggestion of increasing taxes on large incomes. It is apparent, however, to officials of the Administration toward advocating the imposition of a tax of 1 cent per gallon on gasoline, although inquiry made by Government officials had produced the impression that the tax would be unpopular among farmers who use gasoline engines, and that oil well owners would make strenuous protests against the proposal. The impression was rather, however, that these objections had been made any great impression on the Administration. Another suggestion that has come before the President and his Cabinet is that a tax be imposed on bank checks, but nothing has developed to show that this would be recommended by the President.

At the outset of the consideration given to the character of revenue-raising measures the President and his advisers were of the opinion that determination of these should be left to the House without suggestion from the Executive but this idea met with such criticism from the Congressional leaders that the Administration, it is understood, is now inclined to meet Congress half way in devising a scheme with that end in view.

In a letter to Representative James A. Hamilton of Jersey City, President Wilson indicates that he will confine his annual address to Congress to the subject of national preparedness. In confining the address to a single topic he will follow a precedent established by Grover Cleveland, who devoted a long annual message to advocacy of tariff reform, ignoring all other matters.

Representative Hamilton had written urging the President to include in his address some reference to the necessity of adhering to the principle of Civil service reform. In his response the President said he believed it to be better to confine his recommendations to one general subject.

The President was locked in his study in the White House all day to put the finishing touches on his address—literally locked in. White House officials found who tried to get a paper from the study. It was the President's desire, it was said, to finish the address before he went to bed so that he would be free to enjoy the Thanksgiving holiday.

The Public Printer was at the White House today making inquiry about the address, and it was arranged that a first copy of it should be delivered to him as soon as it was completed so that it could be set up in type at the Government Printing Office and printed copies delivered at the White House for ultimate delivery to the Senate and the House coincident with the reading of the address by the President on Tuesday, Dec. 7. The President is drafting the address on his own typewriter, and the impression was given today that he was not having clerical assistance.

LOVE AND DUTY

By JANE OSBORN.

Burton Jones had come to the crossing in college. He was only twenty-two, but in his big, rather heavily built frame, in his kindly, large, expressive features, and in his direct, decisive way of saying things, he seemed much older. The day after his arrival at the boarding house he had noticed Madge.

Burton soon found out about Madge. Everyone in Silver Cliff Crossing knew about the Lathrops. She was the secretary of the manager of the works and supported herself and her invalid brother of her hard-earned wages.

Burton's first feeling for the invalid was one of great sympathy, and, as he looked at the large, well-proportioned figure spruce out in the sunlight on the veranda of the boarding house on Sunday morning, he felt a great pity for the man who was forced to live on his sister's earnings.

Before long, Burton became friendly with the Lathrops, and as a means of helping Madge he spent hours with Hardy, talking to him and cheering him.

Often Madge had to work evenings with the mine manager, and then she would knock at Burton's door and ask him to come and spend the evening with Hardy.

It was spring, and Hardy was showing marked signs of improvement, and with the help of Madge, Madge's nerve was being shaken. Yes, Burton could do it now. He would have to do it. It was killing him to see Madge slaving any longer.

Purposely he walked toward the office of the mine works the next day, in order to walk home with Madge. At that time they talked of Hardy's improvement.

"You have been so good, Burton," she said, letting her hand rest lightly on his arm for a second.

Burton for an instant felt contempt for the helpless brother. He longed to shield Madge, to take her away from the mine works forever.

"Some time, perhaps," he said, "I'll tell you about Hardy, and then you will know how hard it is."

Burton felt no desire to talk about Hardy, and he looked away from Madge as she spoke.

"Some time, some time," began Burton. "I'll tell you why I have done what I have done for Hardy." He turned to her almost brutally. "You know, Madge."

It was dusk in the valley, and Burton sat Madge's wrist tightly in his hands, and pressed down upon them as he looked in her face. "Madge, you know I—"

"Madge," he said, but not angrily. "Burton, don't. How can you? And then she ran on alone up the road toward the boarding house."

The next day Burton met Madge again. She had regained her composure, and so had Burton. He was ready to make clear to her that he could support Hardy until he was better if she would marry him. He started to explain.

Madge touched his arm, ever so lightly. "Burton," she said, and her voice had never sounded so sweet. "I am sorry I didn't tell you sooner. But I had no idea that you were thinking of saying what you have, Burton, didn't you know, haven't you guessed, that Hardy isn't my brother?"

The explanation that followed was incoherent. It was harder than Madge had expected to explain that Hardy and she had been friends in the East and had become engaged. Hardy had no money and no family, only his own will to push his way in his law profession. Then his illness had come, the illness that would eventually kill him in the East. He had been ordered West. She had decided to go with him, to work for him and to nurse him at a sister who would have done. Yes, they might have been married, but Hardy did not wish it. All he knew he could recover. Of course, her friends had objected, but she had come anyway, and Hardy, being helpless, had had to consent. They had passed as brother and sister. Now Hardy's recovery was almost accomplished. There was no doubt of his completeness. In a few months he would be almost as good as new. In the autumn they would be married.

"But you are not married? You are free?" Burton was almost shouting. "Madge, you must love me, Madge, you do."

Burton held her hands to his lips and she made no resistance. "Madge, you do love me, I know it."

She stopped in the half darkness and looked steadily in his young face.

"Yes, Burton, I do love you. I love you better than anyone else in the world. You are strong. You are the man you have to be in the world before you. Hardy has nothing but me. Don't you see how hard it has been for him—how he has pined him—how he has hated himself because he has had to let me do this? But I am the woman he loves, the woman who promised to marry him. That made it possible. That is our only reason. Justifiable, Burton, tell me you understand."

And as Burton left Madge that evening at the threshold of the boarding house he took her hand in his for the last time.

"Madge," he said, "you are the noblest woman I shall ever know."

REACH JOURNEY'S END

Army Aviators Arrive at San Antonio.

San Antonio, Texas, Nov. 25.—The flight close to 4,200 feet high in a 45 mile across wind, the six biplanes of the army's first aero squadron circled above the city this forenoon and alighted on earth at Fort Sam Houston. They arrived in perfect condition. The flight from Austin was made in "one hour and ten minutes. The flight from Fort Worth, Okla., a distance of nearly 500 miles, the most notable achievement of aviation in the world, was completed in about eight hours of actual flying time, and without even a minor mishap worth mention. The long flight tested the officers' ability to keep along a previously designated route while flying by the compass. This feat was achieved throughout the trip except when, near Austin, they were misled by hazy weather.

MAINE MAN WEARS TIN HAT

Natty Headpiece, But Not Likely to Be Adopted as the Popular Mode.

The latest innovation in men's apparel has been sprung by W. H. Whiting of Jonesboro, Me. It is a tin hat, with a band made of copper. He fashioned the natty headpiece himself. It is not only very light in weight, but he claims that it is cheaper than a straw "bonnet," lasts longer and is absolutely rainproof.

Whiting's tin hat has a luster all its own, something that takes the shine off all other hats. It is more showy than Mambrino's helmet, made famous by Don Quixote. Whiting's hat is made of tin, common sheet tin, the same kind of that baked beans and sardines and tomatoes are put up in.

It is built on a 1915 model, and no fashionable youth of the town can "put anything over" on him in the matter of style. It is neat, but not gaudy, a tin body with a copper band, not quite as brilliant as a ribbon with colorful colors, but more substantial and quite as attractive. At least, it attracts plenty of attention when Whiting wears it on the streets—Boston Post.

A French Story.

A leading light of the Parisian bar was deprived of Gaston, his butler, by the mobilization. Gaston has returned, decorated with the Legion of Honor and exempted from further military service because of an incapacitating wound that does not, however, interfere with the exercise of his calling. His place has been kept for him, but his return puzzled the barriester into a perplexing embarrassment.

While Gaston wears the red ribbon, there were about the habitual guests of the home a number of emboldened members of the bar whose buttonholes are entitled to nothing but flowers. The proprietress and all rules of respect were contrary to the ideas of a Legion of Honor man serving one not decorated.

The judge refused to part with his servant and solved the problem by deciding that none but Legion of Honor men should eat at his table.

ROUT TYPHUS WITH PERFUME

Infected Soldiers Are Bathed in and Clothing Sprinkled With Lood-Smelling Cologne.

Cheap, highly scented perfume has been found to be the greatest enemy of the typhus insect. Instead of being washed with soap and water and having their clothes sterilized, soldiers infected with the typhus insect are now bathed in cheap cologne and their clothing is sprinkled with the same highly odoriferous perfume. It has been found very efficacious, especially when the soldier is first attacked with the vermin.

In regard to the recent circular of the German imperial board of health, advocating the use of a preparation containing sabadilla vinegar in exterminating the typhus vermin, Andrew Balfour of the Wellcome Bureau of Scientific Research, London, calls attention to some statistics from Venezuela on the exports from that country of sabadilla.

In 1913, 258 tons of sabadilla seed were shipped from La Guaira to Germany, the shipments in former years averaging something over 100 tons annually. A little of the seed had been shipped to the United States, but none to England. Mr. Balfour considers this another proof of German preparation for the "great day."

J. BARLEYCORN, BAD DRIVER

His Hands Shake, His Knees Wobble and His Conscience is More Than Half Asleep.

John Barleycorn is a bad chauffeur. His hand shakes, his knees wobble, his eyesight is poor and his conscience half asleep. And anyone who permits this reckless driver to sit at the wheel of a motor car is a menace to life.

That is why little sympathy is felt for the Baltimore man just sentenced to two years in the penitentiary because, while intoxicated, he ran down and killed a woman. And if this convict fancies himself the victim of a great injustice, he should compare his fate with that of the woman whose neck his carelessness broke.

One does not have to be intoxicated to deserve prison for reckless driving. Nor does one have to be such, as the Baltimore man is. Indeed, the plight of this man should have an equally sobering effect upon all careless drivers, tipplers, testotolers, plutocrats and poor.

Russian's Trade Language.

Merchandise doing business Russia are advised by the Merchants' Association of New York to use the Russian language in preference to the French in commercial letters to Russian correspondents. As the result of several inquiries on this matter the association a few days ago asked the advice of C. J. Medendorp, the commercial attaché of the Russian embassy in Washington. He stated that it would be better and more advantageous to use Russian rather than other languages, French included.

Before the beginning of the war German was more widely in use as a business language in Russia than the French language, but at present it is not advisable to use German in any correspondence with Russia. There are a number of firms in Russia with whom it is possible to correspond in the English language, and there are agencies for the translation of English into Russian at Petrograd, Warsaw and other large cities—New York Times.

Rabbit Makes Home Run.

Though he was the first man up, two runners crossed the home plate when Jake Thielman, formerly a big leaguer, now of the St. Cloud team, lined out a hit to center field in the game with Long Prairie.

The ball, that was driven clear to the fence, hit a rabbit that was browsing in the long grass. The hare started for the diamond, touched second base, then he based on a few jumps ahead of Thielman, rounded first base on account of the fans on the side line and dashed across the home plate with the player hand on its heels.

"If I had another base to go," said Thielman, "I would have had to tell the rabbit to get out of the way and let someone run that could run."—New York World.

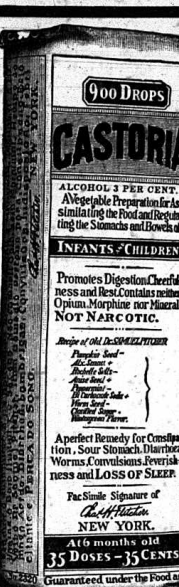

Each Has His Drink Dole.

"One of the most singular views on drinking ever recorded occurs in a letter from Sir Henry Ingely on August 21, 1691, printed in "Fragments Among Private Papers."

"Sir William is so ill," wrote the baronet, "one of his doctors told me that he was no manner of use to him to do but to die, and that the proportion and expedition make great difference in men's ages."—London Chronicle.

No Italian Anthem.

Musicians will doubtless wish to add an Italian national anthem to their repertoire. They cannot find it. Italy has no patriotic songs, as the "Royal March" and "Garibaldi Hymn," but no recognized national anthem, though the last-named song has almost come to the supremacy. In this respect Italy is at the same disadvantage as Turkey. After the revolution the Young Turks offered a prize for national anthems, but so far the poet of patriotism has not come forward to claim it.

Prepayment Saved This Policy

Mr. Claude Westfall, of Clarkburg, W. Va. signed an application for Mutual Benefit Insurance on July 17, 1915, and paid the first quarterly premium of $4.50 to the agent, taking in exchange therefor the Company's binding receipt. He made an appointment for examination the following day, but his wife, for whose benefit the Insurance was to be taken, tried to dissuade him from adding to his insurance.

The agent, however, finally prevailed upon him to be examined and on July 22nd examination was made. It proved favorable—every respect. The application, which was for a Life Accelerative Endowment policy, $1,000 at age 31, was received at the Home Office July 26th. In accordance with the Company's usual custom in such cases, however, an inspection was called for which was received August 2nd. This being favorable, the application was approved by the Medical Board and passed on to the policy Department. Policy was issued and mailed on August 2, 1915.

In the meantime, on July 30th, Mr. Westfall was taken sick and his trouble was diagnosed as acute peritonitis. On August 3rd he died. It will be noted that this was the same day that his policy was mailed from Newark but the first premium having been prepaid the insurance was in force, although the policy itself was never delivered to the insured. The proceeds were paid to the wife on August 10th. Prepayment of the quarterly premium saved this insurance.

EGGS SHIPPED FROM CHINA

Consignments Have Been Lighter From the Celestial Republic During the Current Year.

Shipments of eggs from China to the United States were lighter during the first quarter of 1915 than they were during the same period of 1914. The main reason given in commerce reports is the withdrawal of transpacific merchant steamers owing to the war. Shanghai is one of the chief ports of shipment. During the first three months of the present year 410,780 dozen Chinese eggs, valued at almost $55,000, were shipped to Pacific coast ports for January, February and March, 1914, was 1,818,737 dozen, valued at more than $200,000.

Eggs most popular for shipment are those from Brown Leghorns. No poultry farms or henneries, as understood in this country, exist in China. The eggs are obtained by buyers—similar to our hucksters—and assembled for export. They are shipped abroad fresh, dried or frozen. Northern routes are preferred, because of the saving in refrigeration.

The egg supply is most plentiful during the spring and summer. Chinese chickens are fattened on rice. The cost of production is small, labor being had for 10 cents a day. Shipments from the interior to Shanghai come by rail, river or canal, and sometimes considerable time elapses before the cargoes are ready for exportation. The Chinese farmer generally sells his eggs at about $1.60 a thousand, the price varying according to supply and demand. The interior transportation charges are usually defrayed by the merchant. The poorer qualities of Chinese eggs are extensively used for commercial purposes, entering into the manufacture of chemicals, the tanning of leather, etc.—Indianapolis News.

"TIPPERARY" SUNG NO MORE

Soldiers in the Trenches Now Chant "Is This Mr. Reilly?" Instead of Old Air.

Although it was first thought that the men responsible for "Tipperary" were Americans it afterward appeared that although they had both spent some time in this country they were actually of English birth. Now that song has ceased to be the chant of the British soldiers in the trenches. They have turned enthusiastically to another, which is also said to be of American origin, although an English composer has just asserted that he wrote the music more than thirty years ago.

The song heard just now wherever the Tommies are gathered together is nothing else than our old favorite, "Is This Mr. Reilly? They Speak of So Highly of This Mr. Reilly That Keeps the Home." Several months ago it became a craze with the English soldiers. In order to buy the rights for this country a song-publishing company set out to learn the source of the song.

It was written by Pat Rooney, one of the most popular of vaudeville comedians a score or more years ago. His son is now on the variety stage. Pat Rooney was an Irish impersonator and singer, who wrote "Is This Mr. Reilly?" in 1882.

Those Locomotive Orders.

An order for 400 locomotives looks big on its surface. The allies, particularly Russia, have been buying locomotives by the hundreds and many orders have been placed in this country. Americans are apt to run to the conclusion that each locomotive so ordered is of the American standard, a monster costing about $25,000. A railroad man said recently that it would be a fairer estimate if every locomotive ordered placed by the allies were divided by five.

"I mean," he said, "that one big American locomotive is equal to about five of the foreign locomotives. Some of the Russian orders call for steam locomotives, little diables of the Coney Island type. They are just little playthings compared with our tractors. They might better be called steam trucks, but 'locomotives' sounds better."—New York Times.

Deaths on the Highways.

During the first six months of the present year there seems to have been an alarming increase in the number of deaths and accidents on the public highways. This increase is not confined to any character. For instance, the fatalities due to automobiles in New York state increased from 183 in 1914 to 241 this year. In New Jersey during the same period there were 48 deaths and this year 88. Population grows and so does the number of vehicles in use on the highways, but neither are sufficient to account for this unreasonable increase of deaths on the highways. Drivers and pedestrians both have their rights, but the observance of ordinary care on the part of the man in the vehicle and the man on foot would undoubtedly cause a big decrease in the number of avoidable deaths.—Philadelphia Inquirer.

Value of Expert Testimony. The value of insanity experts and handwriting specialists grows of less and less value the more they are used in the courts. If a man doesn't demonstrate his mental incapacity to the extent that it is observable to the judge and the jury there isn't much use to attempt to prove him crazy by expert testimony. The old Quaker who said: "They are all crazy except those and me and those are a little queer" spoke a near truth.

The Greater Dixie Shows, one of the largest carnival companies which are to exhibit here under the auspices of the fire company opened a weeks engagement on the Fraser lot last night, and despite the unit weather a fair sized crowd, turned out to see the many attractions of the carnival. King's Wild West the feature attraction of the midway, played to large crowds at each performance and the clever work of the ten ponies and their riders was enthusiastically received by the audience. Other features are the Tipperary Show the Old Plantation Show the big Congress of Wonders, Ada the Fat Girl, the big Peris wheel an merry-go-round. As a free attraction the Dixie Shows offer Prof. Chandler the world famous high diver who will give his sensational act every afternoon and night. From the top of a ladder erected one hundred and ten feet in the air he dives h'nding into a net at the bottom. The Italian band with the carnival is one of the best of its kind ever seen in Chester and its concert on the streets last night was roundly applauded. There are ten pieces in the band and every member is a first class musician. The carnival will be here until Saturday night when it goes to Union.

Mr. Pruitt was succeeded by Mr. J. R. C. who a few years ago was Agent for the Southern here.

Carry Your Wealth With You. The greatest riches—in fact, all the wealth that is of real value—must center in yourself. You must be rich within, not outside, of yourself; rich in the things that financial panics, fluctuations of trade, accidents by flood or fire, dishonesty of business associates, or errors of judgment, cannot rob you of. Your greatest investment must be self-investment. Invest in health, in courage, in kindness, in nobility of manhood or womanhood.—O. S. Marden.

New Yorkers Are Milk Drinkers. Milk is becoming the favorite drink of residents of New York city, according to recent statistics of the health department, and the number of licensed saloons is decreasing.
